WINTER, 2013Website: <http://www.charlestonbar.org>*FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Colleagues:

I am a fan of comedy, especially stand-up. My wife puts up with it and agrees to go to shows with me on occasion. I have also taken my young daughter with me when I was certain that the comic was not too "blue". I also love telling jokes, and I can tell some pretty good ones. The problem is that none of my jokes are original. I would love to perform stand-up comedy as a hobby, but I cannot write original jokes that are worth telling. I have the same problem in the courtroom. I have a number of good, canned, deliveries in my arsenal for closing arguments, but they are all stolen from lawyers better than me as well.

I am not a fan of lawyer jokes, however. I can think of no profession apart from our own that has done more to protect and improve our communities, our governments, and indeed the world. Yet we are arguably the most maligned profession as well. While serving as president of this organization, I have a unique opportunity to play a small role in combating our community's negative perception of our profession. Our bar association does a great deal of good in our community, most notably through our pro bono program as well as the Center for Heirs Property. Sertoma is another organization of which I am proud to be a member. Any time that organization helps a charity, it appears in the newspaper. Large amounts of time and money come from lawyers who are working to make Charleston a better place, and for the most part, Charlestonians are never made aware of it. Improving our image in the local community will be part of my focus while in this position. More free CLE's will be another focus, and I will address that in my next letter.

It is an honor to serve as president of this proud association. Thank you for the privilege. I got a laugh at the annual meeting when I promised to work hard toward the noble goal of a scandal-free administration. That joke was stolen too, first uttered by our great past President Cheryl Shoun. Thanks Cheryl, I owe you one.

Humbly submitted,

Lad Howell

PRO BONO MOMENTS

By: Marvin H. Feingold, Esquire
Director/ Legal Counsel
(Charleston) Pro Bono Legal Services, Inc.

Early in our eighth year, things around the Pro Bono office are very much as they have been a constant and continuing stream of applicants for service and also, volunteers who do everything from taking out the trash to interviewing clients and drafting pleadings.

Myriad legal problems present themselves every day. Often we see young mothers with children who have been abandoned by their husbands and, unable to make ends meet, they seek legal help; or it may be a child, seeking to probate a parent's estate. Lawyers who work in these areas know that achieving the client's desired ends in such cases, is not always an easy fix.

Needless to say, after having shopped for a lawyer and finding one unaffordable, the news from a pro bono or legal aid program, that there simply is not a free lawyer out there for every kind of case is tough to deliver. Nevertheless we continue to run the fact through our filter of priorities. Priorities are based on jurisprudential exigencies and the amount of work required.

By the time this Newsletter is published the Available Pro Bono Cases page should be on line (at Charlestonprobono.org.) Attorneys may shop for a Pro Bono case by using the PASSWORD: "volatty."

Attorneys are urged to go to our website and follow the instructions.

The Seventh Annual Ackerman Summer Law Fellow applicants are currently being interviewed and the Program of paid Summer internships will begin on May 13. As in the past 2 seminars are planned for Charleston area Summer interns. We ask that you plan to have your Summer interns attend. The dates for the seminars will be published through the CCBA list-serve, well in advance.

Our funding position is precarious. We depend on direct donations from the private bar for a significant portion of our annual funding. As things stand, we are in a state of perpetual fundraising and urge firms and individual attorneys to please consider a substantial contribution to keep this worthy Program running.

Our Eulogies

By: Ruth W. Cupp

At the February 28th annual meeting of our Bar, Allen R. Holmes delivered a eulogy on Coming Ball Gibbs, Jr., his law partner and friend.

When Coming made this state's highest score the on the LSAT, Harvard offer him an admission, which he turned down "gleefully."

"Coming was a remarkable trial lawyer. I never saw anyone more gifted at cross examination....once a judge ordered a transcript of Coming's cross for the judge's entertainment.

"He was the patron saint of the underdog, the broken and the down-on-their-luck. He with Ann Stirling and other lawyers took the representation of a convicted murder under circumstances where it appeared obvious that he had received ineffective assistance of counsel. Even though the S.C. Supreme Court on 3 occasions rejected this view and the U.S. Supreme Court twice, the U.S. Supreme Court ultimately ruled that the client was entitled to a new trial. The client is freed, welcomed back by his family, and has lived a law abiding life. Needless to say, this case consumed hundreds of hours of otherwise billable time for Coming received no compensation. This case meant more to him than almost any other.

"Coming represented many lawyers who were in trouble with the Bar....Coming would not hold a lawyer in default....Coming kept a sense of humor. He made no attempts at pretense....he took great satisfaction from his life and his work."

"We will miss him."

Grady Query gave the tribute to Paul N. Uricchio. III

Ricky never forgot his roots. "He was not just a lawyer but also a friend to his clients. He worked seven days a week, studied the law more than other lawyers and was truly an expert in the area of torts and insurance law."

"To him the law was his toolbox and he was a skillful craftsman who used those tools to accomplish his trade for the benefit of the lame and the downtrodden who were most often the people that he served."

"As those of you knew him well are totally aware, Ricky was a free spirit and he marched to his own drummer. He loved his motorcycle and his freewheeling friends. Lesser known was his love of classic poetry which he recited beautifully and his knowledge of history of the old city (Charleston). Most of all he loved his family and his clients. He never went a day without talking to his children and his phone was never off to his clients."

"A photo copy of each eulogy is made and the film is given to the family of the deceased member" said Robert Bernstein, past president of the county bar.
